Jan 6th what's the plan

Looks like I'll be coming alone but that doesn't mean I want to be unprepared. Without being too specific (for obvious reasons), I'll be taking whatever public transportation/taxi I can find from the Baltimore suburb I'm staying in early morning of the 6th, with the goal being to get as close to the capitol building as possible. I think it would be stupid to get there without a real plan, but posting or commenting anything on here seems like an even worse idea. I'm not showing up to 'protest' I'm coming to ensure my children don't have to live under tyranny, so I guess I'm looking to get a sense of what similarly minded people are planning while not tipping off the commies

Hope you don't get caught in any friendly fire, looks to be a complete shit show if things kick off. No direct chain of command, directives or plans in general for the masses. I'm sure smaller groups are organized but the majority may become operation human shield, not on purpose. Streets will be too crowded to move effectively. City is already closing streets and setting up funnels. You can't organize a group this big at the last minute, too many variables.

Thanks, and yeah I agree. At this point I'm hoping I'll meet some people there who are already organized and who could use another man
